

MURMURATORMENSTRUUS

FEBRUARY 2020

Salvēte / Χαίρετε,

I hope everyone's semesters are going well! Some of y'all are starting spring break, so we have that to look forward to.

I'm happy to (just barely) make the cut to have a publication out for February 2020. This issue has more memes (those never get old), an update on local events, and a reminder to register for NJCL Convention when the form opens this weekend. The portal for registration can be found on NJCL's website at <https://njcl.org/NJCL-Convention/2020-NJCL-Convention>.

As always, I would love for people to hit me up if they want to write for future issues. I'd like to have a larger issue than normal for State Finals Certamen in April, but I can't do that without y'all! Email me at editor.vscl@gmail.com if you're interested.

Ā laevō pectōre
Matt Nelson

Upcoming Classics-y Dates

Sunday, March 1: Registration for 2020 NJCL Convention opens

Saturday, April 4-Sunday, April 5: Aulos workshop hosted by CAV (See CAV website for details)

Saturday, April 18: UVA Classics Day (note the date change!)

Saturday, April 25: VSCL State Finals Certamen at Washington-Liberty HS

Saturday, May 2: CAV Spring Conference (See CAV website for details)

Friday, May 15: Res Difficiles Conference hosted by UMW (See UMW Website for details)

Updates from the VSCL Board

Lots of VSCLers turned out in Richmond this past month for a fun social event hosted by VP Lexi Harrell and the rest of RMC. Our group visited the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts, went out for a pizza dinner. The evening concluded with an intense round of Jeopardy at Stefania's house (see picture below). Thanks to Lexi for planning the event and to RMC kids for hosting! Pay attention to our social media/email list/GroupMe for updates on when our next event will be.

2020 NJCL Convention!

NJCL Convention opens Sunday, March 1st! If you plan on going, make sure you register quickly because Virginia has a delegate cap (one cap for all delegates including JCLers, SCLers, sponsors, and chaperones). If you don't plan on going, well, let me convince you other wise.

NJCL Convention is gonna be a week IN RICHMOND, VIRGINIA hanging out with other SCLers from Virginia and the rest of the country. Some of the events you can enjoy include running Ludi and Olympika with your friends and going to SCL-only mixers. If you don't like socializing, you can still go and check out the wide range of classical colloquia (lectures) NJCL has. If you don't like socializing OR classics, well uhhhhhhh I guess you shouldn't go after all.

If you have any questions about NJCL Convention, feel free to ask in the group chat, message our Insta (@virginiascl), or ask any of the officers individually. Hope to see y'all in Richmond!

NUGAE

Christians:

Nero:

